Tanks Dive From Road In Confusion As Bombers Wreck Havoc

By GORDY ANDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer
With the ROYAL AIR FORCE

IN FRANCE, May 23.—German tanks were seen diving from roads in confusion to avoid clusters of bombs dropped yesterday by the flying Royal Air Force planes in widespread raids just behind the lines in northern France.

Large formations of British advance air striking force took part in the raids aimed at shattering German communications and supply lines.

RIVAL TANK BATTLE
At one point as their planes roared down, the pilots said, they could see a battle on the ground between two German and two Allied tanks. Twenty German light tanks were counted along one road near Amiens. They were spotted with machine-gun fire from the planes.

Bombs were poured on military objectives a few miles north of Amiens, occupied French and German advance forces. Light anti-aircraft units were observed north and northeast of Amiens, but there seemed little movement over the roads in this section.

British aircraft spotted one convoy and bombed the head of the column. Pilots reported that the tanks were in confusion and that it was believed the road was blocked. Another convoy was also blocked in a wood.

Back from the raid, the bomber crews told of being "lucky enough to find some of the tanks which had broken through" Allied lines.

FALLS OVER BACKWARDS
"One of the pilots dropped a bomb right in the middle of three of them," the fliers said. "One of the tanks reared up like a horse and fell over backwards."

"Another machine found a convoy of German lorries and let go his load at them. He could actually see the lorries toppling headlong off the road."

Phantom Bomber Is Strange Target For Anti-Aircraft Guns

LONDON, May 23.—Anti-Aircraft

batteries on the east coast Tuesday night brought down a "phantom bomber" a Royal Air Force Hampden bomber after it flew over the coast and was seen by anti-aircraft gunners. The bomber, which was seen by anti-aircraft gunners, was shot down by anti-aircraft guns. The bomber was seen by anti-aircraft gunners, was shot down by anti-aircraft guns. Empire Day Marking 121st Anniversary of Queen Victoria's Birth

By The Canadian Press
Reflecting unity and strength of the British Commonwealth of Nations that has survived the strains of more than one great war, the Empire celebrates today the 121st birthday of Queen Victoria, beloved and revered through peace and war for 44 years.

Victoria ascended the throne in 1837 and died in 1901 shortly after investing Lord Roberts with the insignia of the Order of the British Empire in the South African war.

Canada, in the tradition of years, has a national public holiday in honor of the Queen's birthday. The United Kingdom and other dominions and colonies the anniversary of the Good Queen's birthday has been joined with the observance of Empire Day.

LONG REIGN
At Queen Victoria's coronation in 1838 the Archbishop of Canterbury is said to have muttered in amazement, "This for a woman!" Had he been able to foresee this lasting tribute to herself and the perpetuation of her reign in the hearts of her people, he would have been even more astounded.

Queen Victoria's reign—the longest in British history—saw the development and consolidation of the Empire and great extension of power on land and sea. The Queen became Empress of India. It was during her reign that the Dominion of Canada grew from a group of scattered colonies to a strong confederation under the British flag.

Daughter of Edward, Duke of Kent, son of George III of Great Britain, and his wife, the daughter of William IV of Prussia, Victoria's reign was not very great. Her uncle, afterwards George IV, was King.

He died and was succeeded by his brother William IV. When William died his 18-year-old niece, Victoria, was the sole surviving child of the late king of George III.

CANADIAN ORIGINATOR
Credit for originating Empire Day throughout the Empire is given to Mrs. Clementina Fensenden, a Canadian of Hamilton, Ont. As a result of her efforts the Hamilton School Board in 1884 set aside one school afternoon of the year as "Flag Day" in a view to inspiring children with patriotic and imperial sentiments.

The idea received enthusiastic cooperation from the Ontario department of education who urged the making of a national movement. The latter action resulted in the first observance of Empire Day throughout Dominion schools in 1886.

It was not until 1902, after the Queen's death, that Empire Day was finally established in the United Kingdom through the efforts of Lord Meath.

LONDON, May 23.—Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information, in a broadcast to the Empire last night said the situation "is perhaps graver than at any time in the war of 1914-18." It was Mr. Duff Cooper's second broadcast in two days.

"That does not mean defeat is on the horizon," he said. "The war will be won by the Allies and won at the sooner for the perils and sacrifices being laid upon them now."

CANUCK TROOPS STOW AWAY TO REACH ENGLAND

LONDON, May 23.—Canada's latest contribution to the Empire's forces included some trans-Atlantic hitch-hikers—downaways whose number the News Chronicle today placed at 22.

They originally were part of the latest Canadian contingent to arrive here, but had been ordered to stow away because of lack of accommodation, the newspaper said.

"They were almost heart-broken about it," one of their friends told the newspaper, "we were not much surprised when after a few days out they were found aboard."

After a severe reprimand they were absorbed into the unit.

Defence Minister States Immediate Help Will Be Extended

OTTAWA, May 23.—The time must be lost in pressing Canadian preparations and in increasing the weight of the Dominion's contribution to the Allied fight against Germany, Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of national defence, said today.

NO TIME IS LOST
The defence minister spoke on a national meeting of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and gave to the people a report of the war effort and the state of the Canadian contingent to the Allied cause."

"In these circumstances it is our duty to examine the means by which we can give immediately increased aid to the Allied cause," said Mr. Rogers. "It is being done as rapidly and as exhaustively as possible. Not a minute must be lost in pressing on our preparations and in increasing the weight of our contribution."

The gravity of the present situation has become clear "to every one of us," said the minister.

"The inevitable reaction of a people with pride of race and tradition such as ours has occurred. The government at Ottawa has been inundated with offers of assistance from individuals and various associations."

REMAINS CONFIDENT
These, Mr. Rogers said, have been so numerous that prompt replies could not be sent in all cases but he wished to assure the persons concerned that these offers were "sincerely appreciated" and were being given the "closest attention."

"The dark side of the picture is plain for all to see," he declared. "There is no need for emphasis. But I shall never lose confidence in the ability of the British people, backed by such an army and surrounded by such a people, to reform the Allied lines."

NO TIME NOW FOR POLITICS STATES F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Alf. M. Landon demanded a "no third term" pledge from President Roosevelt yesterday as the terms of Republican participation in any coalition defence directorate, and the U.S. president asserted, in a coldly polite reply, that he had no need for "political statements."

The exchange took place after Landon, a Republican presidential candidate in 1936, lunched with the president at the latter's invitation. There had been speculation that the luncheon might lead to a "coalition cabinet" or some other form of joint Democratic-Republican direction of the huge rearmament program.

Congress, meanwhile, was working swiftly to provide the hundreds of millions Mr. Roosevelt felt required for the armament expansion.

Gen. McNaughton's Recall To Direct
War Effort Urged

TORONTO, May 23.—The recall from overseas of Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the first division of the Canadian Active Service Force, "to lead and direct war effort," was suggested yesterday in a statement issued by Major-General Victor Williams, chairman of the committee for patriotic action of the Canadian Corps Association.

Saying "Canada is today at the most critical hour of its history," General Williams urged that McNaughton's recall by the Dominion government be effected "The British Canadian has been asked to contribute to a re-estimate of England for four months. He alone has complete knowledge of our requirements in war and in peace."

Provinces, Cities Giving Support To Fifth Column Drive

By The Canadian Press

Four Canadian provinces, backed by numerous municipalities and public bodies, have lent their official support to the nation-wide drive to crush subversive "fifth column" activities in the Dominion.

Manitoba, British Columbia and Ontario followed yesterday by Premier Albert of Alberta who pledged the full co-operation of his Social Credit government in any move against undermining influences.

PROTECTIVE DEMANDS
At Montreal, the Board of Trade demanded "increased immediate protection" against sabotage. A resolution addressed to the Dominion government asked for provision of adequate funds for protective services in plants, offices, business firms and private homes.

An open letter addressed to Mr. Rogers by the Canadian Machine Gun Overseas Association at Toronto said: "We believe you will appreciate the value of having available some 1500 ex-Vickers machine gunners in the Toronto area alone. There are strong associations in Windsor, Vancouver, Hamilton and other cities, all of whom will gladly co-operate in any scheme in which you may require them."

The northern Ontario branches of the Canadian Legion have given their support to a proposal to organize ex-service men and territorial volunteers for the purpose of a plan for depriving persons of German origin of firearms.

The Hamilton branch of the Amputations Association has suggested United States tourists entering Canada should be required to obtain a passport to "eliminate the danger of infiltration of fifth columnists."

The Provincial government has ordered Queen Victoria Park at Niagara Falls closed to traffic in the past, the Ontario Attorney-General, Hon. Gordon Cousens, disclosed he sent a wire to De-

THURSDAY, MAY 23, 1940.

What It Means

Telling his countrymen on Tuesday that Nazi planes were sweeping down the roads of France with machine-guns wide open, taking a toll of refugees the like of which had never been seen before, President Roosevelt said he thought the United States "would realize the implications of that method of warfare."

The Senate appropriations committee did so, and gave quick approval to the new defense bill. Congress then realized the implications as they talked about the possibility of a victorious Hitler planting bases near the Panama canal. New York saw the implications as men of international repute joined to form a "Committee to defend America by aiding the Allies."

The "implications" of course are that Nazi planes would one day sweep down the roads of the United States doing what they did in France if the Allies are defeated, for they are holding the battle line for world democracy. Dictator control over "every human being and every mile of the earth's surface" means Nazi control of the United States—and the use of Nazi means to gain it.

A Ferocious Fory

Things are not going so well with Herr Goering's flying column of civilian-killers. Their career of slaughter probably reached its turning point when the French captured Arras and the British cut the communications of the path-finder circle brigade that had penetrated to Abbeville, a few miles from the Channel.

The question now is whether enough infantry and artillery followed in the wake of the raiders to consolidate the Bulge. Otherwise the flying column will probably fly for home or be wiped out in sporadic fighting as the Allied forces close in on its flanks. Weygand and Petain will see that the closing-in operations are pushed.

The raid was a desperate venture. It could only have been undertaken by men who were more than ordinarily willing to die for their cause—had it as it. They involved death, and earned it, by bombing and machine-gunning refugees fleeing along the roadways.

If any have imagined the Nazi fighting men are wanting courage, or lukewarm in their devotion to Hitler, this demonstration of daring and ferocity should convince them. If the spirit and recklessness of the raiders is common to the Nazi forces, there is a lot of fighting to be done before the new barbarism is crushed.

All-Round Conscription

Both wealth and labor are brought under conscription by a new measure passed by the British parliament. The detailed applications are not explained, but the general scope of the bill is clear. Property is to be handed over to the Government without formality when required for war use; men are required to work at any job assigned to them, take what pay the Government says they can have, and work as many hours as ordered.

The legal and recognized rights of property and of personal service are thus both suspended—in the country where such rights were fought for and are rigidly maintained. Excess profits are to be taken by the state in total, and the state is to say what a man shall do and what he shall get paid for doing it.

Britishers will not like that. They would not tolerate it in peacetime. But they will submit to it as a temporary necessity imposed by war. The productive resources of the country have to be utilized to the full without regard to individual preference or peacetime law.

The choice is to accept state-control for a time, or have to accept it permanently. For should Hitler win, state-control for every person and every thing in Britain would be the order there, as it is in Germany and in the countries which Germany has conquered.

Reading the War News

This week has given people in the Allied and neutral countries their first real shock of the war. The lightning offensive driven into northern France tested their nerves, and undoubtedly spread consternation in many quarters. One heard talk of the war ending in three months, and ending in the destruction of the British and French Empires—not among Nazi sympathizers but among those to whom that outcome would mean the end of what they hold most precious in life.

The younger generation know now something of what their elders went through during a four-year struggle that swung backward and forward with nerve-racking uncertainty. There were darker days in that period than we have seen this week. There will be more dark days before this struggle ends. We cannot hope otherwise. We shall individually have to mobilize our resources of self-control, patience and faith to meet them.

The news of a day must be read against the background of yesterday and in the light of steady confidence in the long result. An army of millions is not to be destroyed overnight. A mishap in one sector does not spell irretrievable disaster. A reverse today may cost the enemy more tomorrow than he has gained. The most terrific offensive launched by the German armies in the last war came in the spring of the year whose close found them beaten.

War news has to be placed in its proper perspective, assessed at only its actual present meaning, whether good or bad, and studied with cold calculation. When one picks up a newspaper in these days he should take his emotions firmly in hand.

Young Belgian refugees, who had not been drafted for war service, are now being enlisted and put in training. The Belgian army will thus be raised to 1,000,000 men. The 300,000 added by these enlistments represent a further enlargement of the Allied reserves of man power not required at present.

Parachute-jumpers landing in England in civilian clothing will incur the death penalty, whether caught at once or later. Those landing in uniform may be shot in doing so, but will be treated as prisoners of war if they surrender. The law draws a line, as it should, between soldiers and sneaks.

Mobs, said to have been composed largely of soldiers, wrecked buildings at Regina, whose occupants had presumably made themselves obnoxious by expressing anti-Allied sentiment. The job of attending to the offenders might better have been left to the police. Because, among other reasons, the Government may come to pay for the damage. The war will cost enough, without such items being added to the expense bill.

Canada is buying two more destroyers, building scores of submarine escorts and mine layers, and the enlisted men in the naval force will number 10,000. They are doing work which would otherwise have to be done by ships and men of the British navy, as in the former war. That they are doing it efficiently is shown by the fact that they are to take on still more of the duties of preventing enemy activity in the Caribbean and the North Atlantic—at the request of the British authorities.

The Passing Show

ORACLES OF THE SPIRIT

O England is an island,
The fairest ever seen;
They say men come to England
To learn that grass is green.
And England's fate is at war,
All for this, they say,
That they are free, and other men Must be as free as they.

Some Englishmen are fishermen,
And other some are miners,
And others man the shipping yards
And build the ocean liners;
But one and all will down tools
And up with gun and sword
To make a stand for Freedom Against the War Lord.

There's been an English kingdom
For twice a thousand years;
Her men have ploughed and reaped it
O'er meriment and tears.
But never a twenty year has passed Without some stroke's been given
For Freedom; and the land is free
As any other heaven.

The Roman and the Spaniard,
The Christian, have tried
Their warts, and now the German Must perish in his pride.
He may burn and thimble slaughter,
He may scold and storm and pray;
But we shall fight till even his Stand up free men may say.

All our past acclaims our future: Shakespeare's voice and Nelson's hand, Milton's faith and Wordsworth's trust in this our chosen and thimble land.
Bears us witness: come the world against her,
England yet shall stand.

Change darkens and lights around her, alternate in hope and in fear to be;
Hope knows not of the truth, nor fear whether hope be not as blind as she;
But the sun is in heaven that beholds her immortal, and grided with life by the sea.

The earth is full of anger,
The seas are dark with wrath,
The Nations in their harness
Up against our path;
Ere yet we loose the legions—
Ere yet we draw the blade,
Jehovah of the Thunder,
Lord God of Battles, aid!

En now we face the fray,
En now we face the fray,
As Thou didst help our fathers,
Help Thou our hot today!
Unfilled, of sign and wonder,
In life, in death made clear—
Jehovah of the Thunder,
Lord God of Battles, hear!

There they are—Maurice Hewlett, Swinburne, and Rudyard Kipling—a trinity of genius whose verse echoes the mood of the nation. Let us remember that each of these poems was written under the shadow of grief or approaching storm. All of them were nurtured in a sad or stricken hour. Yet the nation weathered the storm. The glory of free men was not exchanged for the shame of slavery. Nothing is certain in history, and all now is in flux. But the noble folk of English freedom has withstood many checks and misadventures before and will do so yet again.

MAKING CHRISTIANITY VOCAL

Once I heard Mr. Moody say that many Christians are like Lazarus, with a napkin round their mouths. He was preaching upon witness-bearing, the highest function of the Christian.

Passing over the obvious truth of the need that every disciple, upon every proper occasion, should "speak a good word for Jesus Christ," let us muse for a moment upon the possibility of relationships leaving the field open for playing of a new-fangled conception of international relations leaving the field open for playing of the time-honored game of power politics—
Winnipeg Free Press.

President Roosevelt's momentous message to the American Congress recently is important not so much for its statements of fact as for its implications. In effect, it means that the United States has officially abandoned the measure of isolation imposed upon the Administration by the Neutrality Act and its amendments. It is expected that the Congress will sanction that abandonment within two weeks, thus giving effect not merely to the wishes of the Executive branch but to those of the overwhelming majority of the people; for during the past week or so there has been a remarkable reversal of American opinion.

Until the Nazi invasion of the Low Countries, sympathy was definitely with the Allies, but isolationist sentiment was still strong. The invasion, isolationism has been swept away like the tide of events, and although public sentiment has not yet reached the point of active participation by the United States, it has crystallized in a desire to aid the Allies in every giving testimony in more public ways.

How seldom do the "Letters to the Editor" columns of our newspapers carry a clear word of support for Christ and the Church. Few need-ers ever testify to the editor concerning the merits of moral and religious editorials and contributions, though the merits of most news and commentaries are clamorously voiced.
Legislators and public officials do not often get unprompted messages from constituents, determinately and sincerely written from the Christian standpoint.

Let us get to our pens, in obedience to the command to be witnesses for Christ.

They had redeemed us, O Christ, and we would ever testify for Thee by our words, as well as by our lives. Amen.

The Talkers

Public men in England give us an example, more or less, of an old habit with them. It will be noticed that these men find a way to make clear in a very short time, sometimes in only a few minutes, very grave problems with which they have to do. Might our public men discover a method to profit by these good examples of intelligent conciseness? It may be that it is necessary to pronounce a discourse of three or four hours, but the occasions for it are very rare.
And how many listeners can absorb such a dose of eloquence? How many, on the contrary, if they have taken the trouble or if they are compelled to listen, have lost track of the first part of the speech before the second part is finished?

Would Help Saskatchewan

For Saskatchewan, the dominion-provincial relations commission report offers a very inviting way out of discouragingly pressing difficulties. First of all, the province's ever-increasing load of debt, reaching the point where it is becoming unbearable for a province of such limited taxing resources, would be assumed by the dominion under the commission's strikingly ingenious financial proposals. Last January this debt amounted to $14,000,000.

Secondly, the tremendous cost of unemployment relief, which in this province has reached millions yearly, would be lifted from the back of the local government.

Briefly these two proposals, if implemented, would pull Saskatchewan's financial spiral into the ground which it slipped during the bad years.
For drought brought increased relief costs. The province could not cope with that cost and had to borrow from the Dominion Government in addition to getting special grants. The borrowed money was added to the public debt. Interest on the money was added to the money. The money to the public debt. It was a truly vicious circle.

The Decline of the League

The cabled news that merely a skeleton staff is being retained by the League of Nations organization, and that this staff is poised for flight once the expected attack by the totalitarian powers on Switzerland is launched, marks the end of the League of Nations. The League was brought into existence in Paris, but by the League as it was after being denatured and destroyed by the League of Nations. The League was a meeting place for world statesmen, and Great Powers that found the obligations implicit in the Covenant inconvenient.

As the process of destruction went forward, there was lack of assurance that these modifications in policy would more effectively equip the League to further its purpose of maintaining the world in peace. The very idea of force eliminated, as no longer in keeping with the world's pacifist trends, the League Council would be a meeting place for world statesmen, who in sweetest amity would settle all international disputes in the spirit of goodwill. Meanwhile, the good offices of the League in carrying out peaceful international projects, in health, in social betterment, in advancing backward nations and helping them with their financial problems, would be destroyed.

And day by day increase the recognition by all the nations of the world of its indispensability.
All are now, like the League, in a state of amiable lunacy; but, as recently as two years ago, this was the attitude of the governments of substantially every member nation of the League, and it was war, not peace, that was the result. The League was a meeting place for countries having as between themselves the most diverse views by the pacifists who saw in it the only power that could destroy the League isolationism because it was a cheap gesture towards a harmless internationalism; by the League's power, the League was a meeting place in the highway patrol's work. No one would suspect a patrolman was looking for dope smugglers. And if he found them, there are always several other patrol officers in this area whom he could call on for help.

"This search has been going on for months. Harris gave me the chance to go on with Hugh's work. There may be other officers in this area, posing as tramps, farmers, or even working with the gang, all trying to get the evidence that will convict the leader of the narcotics smugglers. I can't quit now, Monnie—no even for you."

"I understand, Larry. I'll wait. But you'll be careful."

He laughed, kissed her lightly. "Of course. I'll be careful. Anyway, Bentley—if he is head of the ring—doesn't suspect me. He couldn't have learned Hugh's name. He thinks I'm just a dumb cowboy, and if I get caught around his place I'll get away. I'm hunting a stray. Being close to him gives me a chance to watch what he does."

"But I can't figure out why he went to the trouble of stealing your car. Have you any idea why he'd do that?"

"No," she answered slowly. "He likes to drive it, though. He asked to borrow it several times. But that's one thing I never lend. I always make him use the ranch car. He wanted to use it that Saturday night. When I refused, he said he'd come and see me for the ranch car. But no one came."

The drone of a motor came from the West. Larry was instantly alert.

"Here comes the plane now—let's go with another shipment. I'll have to hurry." He jumped up, ran to catch her horse and his own. "I'm going to have a clear look this time. He back by dawn."

She held him tight as he kissed her.

British Invasion Feasible Only If Nation Not Ready

LONDON, May 23.—The Daily Express, published by Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, said yesterday that while a German invasion of Britain is "perfectly feasible, it cannot be successful if we are prepared."

"If Hitler conquers the French coast, his planes could sweep troops to a screen a point of landing," it declared.

"The lesson of Norway is that: invasion of Britain is perfectly feasible. But it cannot be successful if we are prepared."

SENATOR RAPS LINDBERGH FOR TWO SPEECHES

Not Qualified To Speak On Defence, Declares U.S. Solon

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Sitting in the Senate today, Senator James H. Doolittle, Republican of Wisconsin, rapped Charles Lindbergh for his criticism of the Roosevelt administration's foreign policy. Senator Doolittle said that last night Lindbergh was "not qualified to speak on the subject that 'Wrong Way' Corbin was a failure, either before, or after, the Atlantic ocean."

The South Carolina Democrat added that "Fifty columns are all ready active in America," and that "those who consciously or unconsciously retard the efforts of this government to provide for the defence of the American people are the fifth column's most effective fellow travelers."

REPLY TO DOMINION
Byrne broadcast address was considered the administration's official reply to the speech by Lindbergh called last Sunday for an end to "historical chatter of calumny and innuendo," declared Doolittle.

Discussing the problem of Europe and disarmament, including one in which the speaker said "in effect that we must demand Canada separate itself from the British Empire."

Byrne said that speech in effect belittled "the work we have done in the British Empire."

Dismissing the problem of United States defence in the event the British fleet was destroyed, Doolittle asked if Lindbergh really believed the American fleet would be so affected seriously in such an event.

TALKS REAL EFFECT
Hiller might order Britain to surrender, he said, if she was defeated, Doolittle said, "if the British surrender, the fleet would be so affected seriously in such an event."

"But to me these vile, barbaric demagogues represent an attack against everything that we hold dear in this country," Doolittle said.

"Lindbergh seems not concerned with the rights of peaceful nations," Doolittle said.

"To Mr. Lindbergh all these seem to be only trifling matters," Doolittle said.

"The most serious thing that we are faced with is an age-old struggle for power."

"But to me these vile, barbaric demagogues represent an attack against everything that we hold dear in this country," Doolittle said.

"Lindbergh seems not concerned with the rights of peaceful nations," Doolittle said.

U.S. Girl Ambulance Driver Tells Horror Of Nazi Bombing Of Refugees

Providence, R.I., May 23.—Back from the war front yesterday came the story of an American girl's work as an ambulance driver under bombardment, told in an air-mail letter Elizabeth F. Adams, of Providence, wrote to her parents.

Miss Adams, who spent weeks in a great-city here preparing for France, was rushed with the rest of the American group to the front between the Maginot line and Verdun on May 19, 20, she wrote in her letter dated May 14, and helped evacuate refugees under fire.

"It was terrible," she wrote. "I was bombed—oh, God—I know how it felt to have a plane go over you like a dark, vicious shark, and see it drop to bombs," she wrote.

She wrote that she saw the pilot of the plane, adding, "I know what it is like to be driving a plane."

R.A.F. PILOT HOLDS JERRY LONE-HANDED
Vanguard Of Germans Meets Tough Customer In Airman

LONDON, May 23.—A Royal Air Force pilot yesterday, standing alone in the midst of a burning French town, and for some time, attacking the Vanguard of German hosts advancing into the town.

Here's his story: "In a town that lay directly ahead of me, I saw a German plane. I was checking to see that nothing had been left behind for Jerry to use. I was standing in the street, and I looked over my shoulder and saw the German plane."

"There were 12 of them walking through the smoke of burning buildings. I couldn't get in my car because it was jammed with people. I grabbed a grenade off a rack at the wheel and let it fly. It got one on the left and blew in the side of the farm cart and—damned important to me—gave me a cut."

"I leaped it up the street. Their bullets were knocking the spot out of the ground under my feet and lone-one clipped my hair and off my nose. Finally I ran into some of our chaps in a truck and they took me off."

Mr. Chas. Stunell Had Such Distressing Spells With His Stomach That He Couldn't Sleep for Hours at a Time—Had Sharp Gas Pains And Nausea Before He Found This New, Scientific Medicine

People all parts of Alberta and the general vicinity are now taking and praising this "New Medicine" for Stomach and Bowel Disorders. Other Splendid Medical Agents "know" the MOSBY'S TONIC, which is being introduced to crowds daily in Edmonton by a Special Mosby's Tonic Representative.

Stomach Gas Followed Almost Every Meal
"During a period of 5 years I had been subject to attacks of gas bloating with my stomach, and I found I could hardly eat a meal without suffering," said Mr. Stunell. "At times my stomach got so full of gas that I seemed to be bloated out of all natural proportion. Often these spells with my stomach kept me from sleeping for hours at a time. I could just lie in bed and wait for one side to fall. I would repeat on me, in fact, I got very little good out of my food and felt weak and half-dried almost all the time. My nerves were very bad."

Says He Can't Praise Mosby's Tonic Enough
"Well, that was my condition when I was certainly a discouraged person."

son, but finally I found Mosby's Tonic and I want to say that it helped me so quickly. Why, do you know, before my very first bottle was gone my stomach and bowels were in perfect order. I can eat and sleep and feel good again. I would like to tell you about Mosby's Tonic. Truly Wonderful. His statement follows:

ALLIES FLYING U.S. AIRPLANES ACROSS OCEAN

Bombing Planes Making Flights From Canada To Great Britain

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Bombing planes are flying over the Atlantic today, according to the public of the Atlantic coast taken to meet the planes.

"The German fleet for the government," was the flying banner on the German fleet, according to the public of the Atlantic coast taken to meet the planes.

"Government control of everything and everybody," ran the banner of the German fleet.

"To conquer totalitarianism we must for the time being go totalitarian," was the banner of the German fleet.

"The Times continued: "A united nation feels no hesitation or misgiving through the new act comes near to suspending the very existence of the British Empire."

"Our ancient liberties are placed in pawn for safety. Temperance and self-control are made with glad heart and cheerful spirit for it makes every man and woman a member of the national fleet."

"The Manchester Guardian: "We must surrender our liberties in the government of our choice in order that we may resume them. The government could do one thing that would have great significance—it could announce its assumption of control over the national fleet."

"Here at last is a tangible manifestation of that dynamic leadership which the nation has been looking for."

"It is the kind of tonic the nation expects from its rulers," commented the Daily Mail.

SHOWS REALISM
The Daily Herald: "We accept the new law. We salute the intelligence of the statesmen who have introduced it. It shows realism, energy and a boldness in our leaders which we could not hope for before."

The Herald went on: "The Chamberlain government had known his job these changes would have been effected. It was the first Great War, and yesterday that Congress authorized immediate military aid to the Allies—'with or without war declaration.'"

O'Brien suggested sending aircraft carriers, transports, protectors, and other warships. A 2,000 bomber and fighter planes with pilots.

He expressed his views in a telegram to the Veterans' Civil Service League after receiving a message from 600 members who had in 1918 offering to fight under him again.

British Press Favors Action Of Government In Taking New Powers

LONDON, May 23.—In the big headlines London's newspapers today told the public of the drastic steps taken to meet the crisis.

"The German fleet for the government," was the flying banner on the German fleet, according to the public of the Atlantic coast taken to meet the planes.

"Government control of everything and everybody," ran the banner of the German fleet.

"To conquer totalitarianism we must for the time being go totalitarian," was the banner of the German fleet.

"The Times continued: "A united nation feels no hesitation or misgiving through the new act comes near to suspending the very existence of the British Empire."

Million Belgians Lack Completely Bare Necessities

OTTAWA, May 23.—Barn Silver, Belgian minister in Canada, said last night in an appeal for relief of Belgian refugees that "over 1,000,000 people lack completely the bare necessities of life."

"Definite and adequate arrangements may soon be completed in connection with the great problem," he said in an address over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's national network. "I have been consulting on the matter with the Canadian government, with a view to securing the greatest efficiency in the effort contemplated for the relief of our refugees."

The speaker itself moved at war-time speed. The address in reply to the speech from the Throne was quickly adopted, standing committee held their first meeting during a brief recess, and then the house passed the aid ministry bill through three readings within five minutes.

Slowness Of War Effort In Rapped By Tory Senator

OTTAWA, May 23.—The German may be on the St. Lawrence river before the "long war" program of the government is functioning fully about 1941 or 1942.

John T. Haig (Cons.), Manitoba told the senate yesterday in criticism of Canada war effort, especially in production of war materials.

The senate itself moved at war-time speed. The address in reply to the speech from the Throne was quickly adopted, standing committee held their first meeting during a brief recess, and then the house passed the aid ministry bill through three readings within five minutes.
